Bangkok, April 2019 — HP Thailand today unveiled the HP ENVY x360 13 – a sleek, stylish convertible powered by the 2nd Gen AMD Ryzen processor with Radeon Vega Graphics. Offering up to 14.5 hours of battery life in a convertible form factor, the HP ENVY x360 13 is designed for demanding creators to bring their imagination to life. It brings powerful performance and versatility to create and collaborate securely, anywhere, anytime.

Consumers want devices that integrate into their life and reflect who they are. Fifty-seven percent of students, content creators and young workers know the PC they want as soon as they see it, and 82 percent of this group consider the PC as a critical part of their life.

The HP ENVY x360 13 features the HP Command Center for powerful performance, sophisticated design with a geometric pattern for audio and thermal venting, and robust security – including a biometric fingerprint reader, a privacy camera kill switch, and optional HP Sure View privacy screen to ensure screen content isn't exposed. This simple utility puts users in control, allowing them to optimize and customize performance, fan speed and noise, and external temperature- all to meet personal needs. Connectivity is also not an issue as the lineup supports Gigabit Wi-Fi speeds providing fast internet connections for demanding streaming apps for movies, music, and gaming.

The new HP ENVY x360 13 is available in Nightfall Black with a unique angular Damascus pattern, multi-threaded processing, powerful integrated graphics, thin bezel and edge-to-edge backlit keyboard. This 13-inch convertible maximizes the user's experience with four productive modes and allows seamless shifts according to creative outputs – writings, drawings, videos, designs and more.
