“RetailEX is the response to the fast-growing and ever evolving retail landscape in the region”, he said.

International participation from exhibitors, sponsors and speakers this year have surpassed last year’s event.

Mr. Richard Ireland, Managing Director, Clarion Events Asia, shared: “We are excited that the event has secured a few first-time partnerships such as with Vend ASEAN and the Singapore Institute Retail Studies, bringing more international participation at this year’s RetailEX.”

“The impact on the trend for online retail may not have a substantial impact at the present, but in the future, this trend will grow and will affect the market share of the retail business,” said Mr. Worawoot Ounjai, President, Thai Retailers Association.

“O2O is very important to retail businesses as adapting to multi-channel or omni-channel both online and offline will enable businesses to serve customers through every possible channel and retain market share. There are three things that retailers must adapt and improve in order to grow their business and win market share. These include technology, service and activities. With the use of technology, retailers can conduct detailed customer insight. This technology will also be showcased at the event and I would like to invite retailers from both Bangkok and the provinces to attend RetailEX to discover how technology can help grow their businesses,” he added.

Mr. Puripan Bunnag, Director of Thailand Convention & Exhibition Bureau President Office Department, added “TCEB is proud to be one of the main supporters of RetailEX ASEAN 2018 as the bureau believes the event has the potential to stimulate economic growth and business development of the ASEAN region. It is the mission of TCEB to use conference and trade show as a tool in driving the economy, business network and collaboration and in promoting Thailand as a central exhibition platform of ASEAN. Thus, our support for trade show is designed to assist related stakeholders, show organizers, exhibitors and trade visitors, which the bureau believes will be benefiting RetailEX ASEAN 2018”

Mr. Charkrit Direkwattanachai, Vice President, Marketing Activation & Public Relations, Marketing Association of Thailand, explained, “Marketers today must understand that marketing must now extend beyond just marketing. They must understand both people and big data as big data is like a marketplace and everything we need is here. What we need are people who know how to use and extract big data correctly. Retailers who do not have access to big data need not worry as they can still access this information. The Marketing Association of Thailand will be organising a talk on this and I invite retailers to attend as they will benefit from this discussion.”

RetailEX ASEAN 2018 is packed with exhibitors and conferences on upcoming trends and insights on how retailers can adapt to changes. It is an event retailers should not miss. For details, visit www.retailasean.com.
